THE Kolumin Shimbun gives an account of an interview held with Count Ito at the Imperial Hotel, Yokohama, by a member of the editorial staff of the paper a few days ago. Relative to the Diet, Count Ito is reported to have said that though it is now the fashion to make a laughing-stock of the Diet, such a course was by no means to be commerded. If ridicule be associated with measures for reform, its utility cannot be denied. But the tendency to bring the Diet into disrepute, which is so manifest in certain quarters, is bound to have a bad effect on the people who have voted for the present members, at well as on a large number of semi-educated country members. who will grow to think that Diets in themselves are uneless institutions. The Diet as it stands, is about as representative an assembly as it is possible for Japan to obtain at the present time. It is useless to speak of whatit may be made : and to represent the weaknesses of the present assombly to be caused by the number of unsuitable member who have been elected. The Diet is as good as can be expected, considering the state of the country. Skill in conduct ing the business of a Diet can only be acquired by practice. If the Diet fails to recognite this, and brings about its own destruction by excessive throulence and fault: finding, the country will full to attain the homographe distinction of being the bret Eastern country to adopt a representative form ofgovernment.

COMMISSIONERS Kwei and Sung were sent from Poking to Foodhow some time ago t investigate a case of considerable impor tance. The matter is this, There is magistrate in the Kien-ning district who was on very intimate terms with an expectant migistrate. When the magistrate's term of office had nearly expired, he remarked to his friend that he hoped the latter would get the position. The expectant magistrate, acting upon this hint, immedistely sont up to a friend in Peking, to make matters square for him with the anthorities. This was effected after a long negotiation, and the expenditure of a considerable amount of money. When matters were mttled, the friend in Peking telegraphed to the expectant magistrate, requesting him to remit; the necessary funds immediately. On receipt of the telegram the expectant magistrate went to the magistrats in office privately, and saked him when he intended to give up the seals of office. For some cause or other the magistrate was offended at the enquiry, and accused the expectent magistrate of bribing the officials. in order to secure the position. In the heat ed conversation that ensued, the magistrate elicited from the expectant magistrate that the laster had been in telegraphic communication with Paking. After this the magistrate went to the telegraph office, and asked the manager if the expectant magistrate had received a certain measage. As the magistrate was a little emperor in the place, he telegraph manager gave him all the information he wanted, and even show ed him the telegram the other had received when the magistrate suddenly draw out his seal and stamped the document.... Then the magistrate sent petitions to the Viceroy and Governor, accoring the expectant magistrate of all manner of wickedness whereupon the expectant magistrate retalisted by sending to those officials petitions of a similar character against the magistrate in office. The Viceroy sent a mediator to make peace between the two and the matter was settled by the payment by the expectant magistrate to his accuser of a certain sum. Before the mediator, however, could raport to the Viceroy the success of his endeavours, the Viceroy got impatient, and thinking his emissary must have failed to arrange matters amically between the parties, sent a petition to the Throne to have both parties dismissed from service and degraded. The Viceroy's petition received the Imperial sauction, and the two magistrates were dismissed. The district magistrate was swfully appry at this issue to the dispute, and went immediately to Peting to lay a complaint in person before the Throne. As he is a Manchu by adoption; and consequently possesses consideral's influence at the Capital he readily was granted a bearing, and special commissioners were appointed to go thoroughly into the circumstances of the case. The commissioners have now been sitting for two days, during the whole of which time the wallow expectant magistrate and his servens have been compelled to kneel on iron chains. ATTACK ON CHIEF INSPECTOR CAMERON BY CHINESE NEAR SHANGHAL

Chief Inapactor Cameron; had a lively

The Inspector was taking a canter with the drag-hunt and had gone about 15 miles into the country beyond Hongkew, when riding past a large village, his mag stumbled, threw Mr Cameron and bolted. The Inspector and some villagers followed the animal into a kind of compound and captured it, not however, before it had overturned a table with some cotton on it in front of a door of one of the houses, and also broken water kong. An old woman immediately rushed out and commenced to scream at a terrific rate, soon bringing about the Inspector's ears a couple of hundred Chinamen of all ages, who began without ceremony to belabour the Inspector. who was not in uniform.
